

Story 121: Paul Goes to Rome as a Prisoner

Paul came to Jerusalem to continue telling people about Jesus. Many of the Jewish leaders hated Paul. They did not want him to talk about Jesus. They tried to kill Paul, but the Roman soldiers saved him from death. Paul was kept in jail to protect him from the Jews. After two years, Paul was brought out to explain to the king and the Roman governor what he was doing. They liked what Paul said, but Paul knew they would give him to the Jews who wanted to kill him. He asked to go to Rome to allow the emperor to decide what to do. Paul was a Roman citizen. He was allowed to go to Rome as a prisoner. Before he was executed in Rome, Paul told many people about Jesus.
